Aim statement

Newly licensed registered nurses must be supported in today's healthcare environment.

Nurse Residency Programs (NRP) aid in the transition from academia to practice and should focus on wellness and professional development resources.

Background

Healthcare organizations face critical challenges in sustaining high-performing, experienced nursing pipeline. Today's healthcare workforce is comprised of high percentages of newly licensed RN (NLRNs).

Methods

Data reveals a decrease in pass rates for NCLEX-RN® exam of 8.3% from 2019 to 2022¹.

Additionally, 1st year retention rates decreased nationally by 3.6% from 2020 to 2021<sup>2</sup>.

Insights resulted in a targeted strategy for the Vizient/American Association of Colleges of Nursing (AACN) Nurse Residency Program™ team to enhance tools amplifying NLRN's wellness.

Call to action

NRP interventions have proven to enhance retention, support, professional satisfaction and collaboration. Wellness curriculum in NRP is essential for NLRN success.

Framework

Strategies to amplify wellness

1 Interactive learning sessions

Content incorporates diverse, multimodal teaching strategies

Include video modules and creative presentation delivery methods

Interactive activities can be customized by each organization

Focus on needs of the adult learner

2 Leadership support

Facilitate attendance at NRP seminars
Provide feedback often Equip with a deep understanding of the processes for evidence-based practice, quality improvement and research
Empower the initiation of positive changes within their healthcare settings

3 Peer networking

Encourage a sense of community and belonging Over half of NLRNs cited that one of the reasons they stay in their 1st position is a sense of community among peers<sup>3</sup>
Emphasis mentorship and dedicated time for clinical reflection within peer groups promoting a sense of camaraderie and support

4 Professional development

Engage in reflective practice, a well-documented tool for personal and professional growth Promote completion of a professional development plan to document next steps after NRP completion

5 Communication tools

Provide interprofessional communication resources including simulation and shared learning opportunities
Standardize structures and processes to facilitate effective communication
